director's·message

Delivering Excellence motivates how we serve in our ministry of auditing for God and His church. We are committed to exploring new horizons of what excellence means to those we serve to ensure we are matching their expectations.

The work of auditors is designed to give reasonable assurance regarding the financial information presented by an organization's management. However, the 21st century has seen expectations grow beyond what a financial audit can provide. Now, organizations and their stakeholders want to receive insights regarding their financial information and the emerging signals for the future. Analyzing data of an organization is the mechanism used to provide such insights and identify emerging signals.

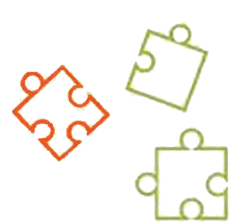

In the Spring of 2020, GCAS will publish a research report entitled A Global Study of Financial Reporting in the Seventh-day Adventist Church that is based on an in-depth scientific study of audited financial reports from church organizations around the world for a six-year period. The research report will present a set of insights for management and governing boards of church organizations to consider as it relates to their respective organization. Selected insights from the research report are shared throughout these pages for your information.

On a personal note, the GCAS family mourns the passing of John Stanley, a long-tenured board member, whose life and contribution to our organization have been the epitome of excellence. He will long be remembered as our friend and champion for the best of what our organization can be.

This GCAS Annual Report presents the summarized results of our work that have been communicated to the management and governing boards of church organizations. A sincere expression of gratitude is expressed to the approximately 300 professionals operating from 45 different countries whose work this Annual Report represents. Together we make Delivering Excellence our signature every day!

A Tribute to Dr John Stanley

An unrelenting pursuit of Excellence and Service

First impressions are lasting impressions according to an old proverb. Franz Kafka cautions that first impressions are always unreliable. It was not so with John Stanley. The first impression was always positive and the more one became acquainted with him the deeper and more substantive the impression grew. Here was an individual of rare talent and exemplary character.

John's life touched countless people in varied ways: as friend, colleague, teacher, mentor, auditor, financial administrator, strategist, business consultant, philanthropist. Though very quiet, humble, and unassuming in personality, his work and relationships spoke volumes about fundamental commitments to honesty, integrity, fairness, equality, the pursuit of truth, and service to others. He was always learning and unstintingly sharing his expertise, time, and friendship.

Born in Trivandrum, Kerala, India, Dr John Stanley's positive influence reached far beyond his birthplace. He became well known and respected in leadership roles with the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists (Southern Asia Division); in international health education and institutional development with the Pai Group of Companies; in Indian national life through membership on a prestigious committee with the University Grants Commission; and in international business development through the consultancy services of Quintesse Consultants, Pvt. Ltd.

At the time of his death Dr Stanley was serving in his fourth five-year term as a member of the General Conference Auditing Service Board.

His legacy is one of lasting attraction and value that illustrates the pursuit of excellence as a way of bringing honor and glory to God.

Lowell Cooper
Friend and GC General Vice President [Retired]

Some of the baptismal candidates

On the final Sabbath of the evangelistic campaign, all 5 sites assembled in one location for a grand celebration and baptism. Through the power of the Holy Spirit, 77 individuals accepted Jesus Christ as their personal Savior and demonstrated their acceptance by being baptized into a new life with Him. The team considered it a privilege to be used as instruments to lead souls to an acceptance of Jesus Christ and the eternal life He has to offer.

Now, the Seventh-day Adventist Church is no longer an unknown to the Ogbona community. In fact, two churches have been planted; a church building is almost completed (see photos on right); and land has been secured to build another church. On a subsequent visit to continue growing this new fellowship of believers, the team intends to bring along health professionals who can provide free health services and partner with ADRA to build a well that can provide a sustainable supply of clean water. The Ogbona Village Chief, who was in attendance for all of the final Sabbath celebrations and baptisms commented – “The Seventh-day Adventist Church is interested in the wellbeing of my community and we will be forever grateful for their positive impact.”

Evangelism is Exciting and it is for Everyone! GCAS encourages its personnel to be involved in ministry at the local church; and also encourages its personnel to experience the dimension of public evangelism which is a life changing experience.
